

303 Gallery Privacy Policy

The following privacy policy outlines the measures that 303 Gallery takes to protect the information and personal data you provide us. We take the EU General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) very seriously and have put standards in place to ensure that your data is protected.

Collecting your Personal Data

We collect personal data, defined as pieces of information that could allow an individual to be identified, from our customers, followers and visitors in order to execute contracts and inform individuals of events and gallery updates that might be of interest to them. This information might be collected when an individual purchases one of our pieces, visits us in person, whether at an art fair or our gallery, or visits our website.

Some of the data that we may collect are:

Shipping addresses for those customers who have purchased one of our pieces Contact information (first name, last name, phone number, e-mail address) for providing individuals with information on a sale or updates from the gallery that may be of interest to them IP address and browser type of visitors to our website

Those who are 16 years old or younger

If you are 16 years old or younger, please ask permission from your parent or guardian before providing us with any personal information.

Your personal data rights

We will only disclose your Personal Data to third parties if we are legally obliged to do so by a statutory authority with the appropriate jurisdiction. You have the right to request details of the personal information we store of yours, as well as other non-personal data we may have, such as your browser language or IP address. If you would like to make this request, contact us at info@303gallery.com Links to other websites There may be links on our websites that send you to other websites. Our privacy policy only applies to the web pages on our web site; once you leave our website, our privacy policy no longer applies, even if you leave our website due to a link that we provided. If you use a link on our website to visit another website, we recommend you read the privacy policy of that website to ensure they are appropriately protecting your data.

Cookies

Cookies are small files or parts of a file stored that may be placed on your computer to enhance your experience when visiting a website. Cookies may contain personal information such as a user identification code, customized preferences, or a record of pages visited.

Cookies help us identify what pages on our website you are using, allowing us to analyze user experiences and thereby improve the usability of our website. Overall, cookies help us maximize the experience of our website. However, you are free to decline the use of cookies when visiting our website by changing the settings of your web browser.

Changes to this Privacy Policy

We may make changes to this policy in the future; any changes will be stated here on this page. When appropriate, we will notify all individuals in our database of the change that was made.
